ACCOUNT

OF THE

Extraordinary Deliverance

OF

Thomas Cross,

One of the Briftol-Gazette Newsmen:

Who was overfet in a small Boat, crossing the New-Passage, on the River Severn, on Sunday, Nov. 6, 1774, in company with seven other persons, who were all drowned.

LONDON: Printed by R. HAWES,

And Sold at the Foundry in Moorfields; and at the Rev. Mr. Welley's Preaching-Houses, in Town and Country. 1777.

Price ONE PENNY.

るとうないとうないとうないとうないのかないのかないのかないというなんなんない

A

E

9 and feve

hou

mily

whe Whi

pain to th

Hing

ADVERTISEMENT.

This Narrative is published at the request of several persons both in Bristol and Wales; and it is hoped will be a caution to every one, who does not understand managing a Boat, not to meddle with any thing belonging to it on the water; as many accidents have happened through imprudencies of this kind, as well as the following.

·子至かりとからかななりとまかれるととなるとなるとなるとなるとなる。

AN

ACCOUNT

OFTHE

EXTRAORDINARY DELIVERANCE

OF

THOMAS CROSS.

N Sunday, Nov. 6. 1774, I came to the New-Passage in my way to Bristol, and about four o'clock in the asternoon, with seven others went into the small boat. As I was coming to it, I was rejoicing to think I should soon be at home with my wife and samily. When I was going into it, I considered where I could sit, to be out of the way. While I was settling myself, I observed the painter (the rope that sastens the small boat to the great one) lying over the oars, and was going to remove it, thinking if any thing should happen, perhaps the oars may help

A 2

help us. But I thought again, I never met with any misfortune yet; and why should I be afraid now? Soon after, we fet fail. The wind was very high, fo that we run at the rate of nine or ten miles an hour. As I fat in the bow of the boat, the waves beating over wetted me a good deal. My fellow paffengers laughed and bade me, Not take more than would do me good. I told them, "I hope I shall not." The wind was strong in the East, and the tide came in very fast. Being almost over, a gentleman's hat blew off. He defired the boatmen, to turn the boat and go after it: but the reft of the company objected to it, and the boatmen absolutely refused, knowing it could not be done without danger. On this he went to the helm himself, and turned the boat with fuch violence, that it immediately overset. * Eight of us were instantly plunge

^{*} The following are the persons that wer drowned; a gentleman about 16 years of age a butler of Mr. Lewis's; Mr. Webber, linen-dr per of Bristol; a man and his wife from Cardis and two boatmen.

net

ıld

ul.

at

As

at-

OW

ake

em, was ve-

an's

, to reft

oat-

ould is he

1 the

iate-

antly

nge

wer

age

n-dr ardif plunged into the water. We called aloud for help; but there was none. One or two funk at once; fome hung by the boat, or by the cloaths of others; but all of us were covered over by every wave that came. The woman held by her husband's coat, and cried, "Help me, my dear, help me." He answered, "My dear, hold fast by me;" but quickly both were under water. Coming up again, she cried, "O what shall we do? My dear, help," and disappeared. The poor man forgetting himself, cried out aloud, "O my dear is gone! My dear is gone! what shall I do? O my dear, my dear!" till he sunk and rose no more.

In this fituation, fix of us who clung to the boat, were driven above half a mile up the channel: when one and another, lofing his strength, was washed off, till only two beside myself were left.

When the boat overset, I lost my senses for a few moments, but recovering, found myself on the surface of the water, and seeing

A 3

lie

ed

ho

ag

I

the

the

Ic

an: W

go Ri

tin

be pit de

ke

no

ing

I c

the

So

the boat four or five yards off, made toward it, and foon laid hold on it. But I was foon beat off by the waves; I laid hold again, and was beat off again and again till my strength was gone. Yet I floated and funk by turns, till feeing the mast above water, I got hold of it, but it sunk with me. When I came up again, I saw the bow of the boat above water; I got to it; but was soon washed off, and sunk again. As soon as I came up I saw the mast and sail above water. I made to it, and rode for near five minutes, which was the longest time that I was above water, from the beginning to the end.

Expecting every moment to be my last, my cry was, "Lord, have mercy upon me, and prepare me for my awful change!" But what I felt, I cannot express. I did not fear death, but judgment; so that I did not cease one moment crying for mercy, that I might stand before God with joy.

Being beat from the mast again, I stoated awhile, and then sunk, not expecting to rise any more. Yet I strove against hope, believing lieving in hope, still praying, though I looked for no human help. Many times I took hold of the boat, and I was as often heat off again. At length I caught hold of the cloaths of one of my fellow-fufferers, which I held till we both went under water together. Coming up again, I caught hold on the skirt of his coat, which I held as fast as I could, till looking on me, with diffress and anxiety, he struck off my hand, and I funk. When I came up, I faw an oar by me; I got on one end of it, which funk with me. Rifing again, I got it between my legs, fitting as near the middle of it as I could. But being at first too forward, I was continually pitching with my head in the water, till by degrees I got further back. I now could keep my head above water, yet I expected nothing but death, being very fick, and having fwallowed fo much water, that I knew I could not hold out much longer.

About this time, I looked if I could fee the boat. And I faw it, but no one near it, So I judged I was the only one left alive, and and that I should soon follow the rest. But presently after, being ready to burst with water, I fell a vomiting. This eased me much, and gave me fresh spirits, so that I thought I could sit upon my oar all night; although still I had no hope of deliverance, being covered over by every wave, and at the best up to my chin in water.

The night coming on fo fast, that the people who had come running down to the shore, could not see me any longer, and therefore were going away. As I could just fee them move; my heart funk within me, and I called as loud as I could: for though I had little expectation of it, yet I thought, if I should reach the shore alive they might give me fome help: whereas if I was alone, I must perish there. So in the intervals between wave and wave, I cried to them with all the ftrength I had; and when I could not call to them, I cried earneftly to the Lord, to prepare me for death. While I was fo doing, I was driven fo near the shore, that I could hear men talk, and thought thought I knew some of their voices, I called them by name, and asked them, "How far am I from the shore?" One answered, "Not far; have a good heart: you will be there soon." I still prayed to the Lord, to prepare me for death, as I expected nothing else; thinking, if I should get to shore, yet the cold has so seized me, that I cannot live.

ft. Bu

fed me

o that 1

night;

erance.

and at

at the

to the

, and

djuft

me,

ough

ght,

ight

one,

vals

em

n I

to

ile

he d

ıt

Soon after, I felt my feet touch the ground. I could not believe it was fo, but thought, it is one of them that are funk, and perhaps he may catch hold of my legs and pull me down. Fearing this, I took up my legs. I did the same quickly after, when I touched the ground again. But soon after when I touched it a third time, I tried to fland upon it, and found it would bear my weight; but it was fo dark, that I could not fee where I was. However I cried out aloud, "I am on ground." Presently one of those that stood on the shore, pulled off his cloaths, and came, and took hold on me, and brought me out of the water. I faid, "Lord help me!" The man faid, "The Lord

Lord has helped you, or you would not have been here now." It was then about eight o'clock; fo that I was near four hours in the water, in this dreadful fituation; and the place I landed at was about a mile and a half from where we were overset.

The shore was a foot or two deep in soft mud. Some others were now come down, two of whom led me between them a little way; but then, finding my strength was quite gone, they laid me down on my back, and taking me by the hands, drew me on to the end of the mud. They then endeavoured to lead me between two; but perceiving I could not stand, first one and then another carried me, half alive to Mr. Baker's, a farmer, near the New-Passage.

Here all possible care was taken of me. As soon as I came in, they forced me to take some rum and water. But I could take very little, my stomach being again quite silled with salt water. They soon undressed me and put me to bed, between warm

var

near y c

than rer

vai

1 t

tha

Go

1

re

ght

in nd

nd:

oft

n,

le

28.

k,

0

-

g r

-

0

warm blankets. Quickly after they applied heated bricks to my feet; for I was so deadly cold, I did not expect to live; yet I was thankful to God, that he had thus far delivered me. About 11, I recovered a little warmen: about twelve I began to sweat. I then strove to sleep but could not for thankfulness. I could do nothing but praise God till morning. And I then sound myself so thoroughly recovered, that I went on to Bristol.

How amazing are the works of God! While all the young, able, lufty men funk in the mighty waters and rose no more, a poor, feeble cripple, that had lost the use of one arm, after being so long tossed to and so by the waves, is brought safe to land! How carefully ought I to devote the remainder of my life to God! How fearful bught I to be of offending so good a God, who has saved me in so wonderful a manner!

FINIS.

Charles and Agrice Vision Constitution A second of the second place of The Control of the Co -smilneting to be a configurate that a Lan nonly fruit politic and a second n years eat for how crossing algorish national designation of the Districted as the State on all providing the processing Initial Webs 11 (2) is a 2 month of this boil a keepa valiation love enlist Transme to the second second